High-Fi Prototype

I divided my shopping cart into two sections: summary of items, and summary of price.

The summary of items on the left side includes roll flavor, glazing, unit price, qty, and item-total price. The user would be able to delete an item, modify qty or glazing on the cart page without having to go back.

On the right side is the summary of price, which includes subtotal, shipping fee, estimated tax, and total. A checkout button is available on the button right, where it is usually placed in a conventional shopping cart page.

The color choice matches with other pages.
